Cuisinarts parent corporation, Conair, is voluntarily recalling about 8 million units after 69 consumers reported finding broken pieces of blade in their food. That includes 30 cases that caused mouth lacerations or tooth injuries, according to the Consumer Product Safety Commission. The blade has four rivets positioned around a beige center cap. If you have a Cuisinart food processor, you should check the model number on the bottom of the unit. The units were sold from July 1996 through December 2015, according to the company. Customers can get a free replacement blade. The Yankee Candle Co. The candle has three wicks in a glass square jar and was sold from September to November 2016. It looks stylish and sleek with the brushed metal finish, but the base being taller than the pitcher kind of threw me off guard.

Seeing that the market is flooded with 300 or 350 watt blenders, I get a little excited whenever I see something out of the ordinary, which is what the Powerblend did for me. The Cuisinart Powerblend comes with a generous 56 ounce pitcher, a measuring cap and a stylish chrome finish and LED display. The Powerblend also impressed with its 7 preprogrammed settings including stir, blend, puree, pulse, mix, chop, liquefy and crush. I like the ultrasharp stainless steel blade inside of the reasonably sized 48 ounce Tritan jar. As far as the controls go, the Remix sports an electronic LED touch pad with settings for high, low, pulse and ice crushing. The tight seal lead also comes with a 2 ounce measuring cup so that you can add ingredients as you blend. I'd recommend using this blender for whipping up smoothies, sauces and soups. The Smartpower 600 just brings that much more value to the table, and at the end of the day you need a high performance blender right

If power is being supplied, your device may need further maintenance. Wait the allotted time and try turning on your device again. Refer to the Cuisinart DFP14BCN Power Cord Replacement guide for instructions. For safety, the machine will not run if components are out of place.

To align your device, lock the work bowl so the handle is facing the front of the processor base. The cover locks the same way as the bowl. Set the cover so the tab is slightly left of center, and then turn it to lock into place. Slide in the large and small pusher and compress the small pusher so that the safety locking mechanism is engaged. Refer to the Cuisinart DFP14BCN Bowl Replacement guide to check if your device is properly aligned. Refer to the Cuisinart DFP14BCN Capacitor Replacement guide for instructions. The motor may create a sound as if it is about to start, but does not do so. This feature prevents the blades from spinning when the parts are not completely or correctly assembled. See the Cuisinart DFP14BCN Safety Switch Replacement guide for instructions on how to access and replace the safety switch. Turn off the machine and wait 510 minutes for the motor to cool off. Try processing the food again in a smaller batch or for a shorter amount of time. If there is excess food buildup, the motor will slow down and stop due to increased resistance. Remove half of the food, and process it in two batches. For future use, refer to the Cuisinart DFP14BCN Instruction Booklet, which offers the recommended capacity for food being processed. Replace the safety switch. Refer to the Cuisinart DFP14BCN Safety Switch Replacement guide for instructions. If the tabs are still in good shape, they may be glued back on. Use PVC pipe glue to secure the tabs. If the tabs broke into multiple pieces, you should buy a replacement cover with functioning tabs. Add a maximum of 3 cups thin or 6 cups thick liquid. Turn the motor on before adding other liquid ingredients and add liquids slowly to allow the other ingredients to absorb it. Do not remove the metal blade first. When the bowl and blade are removed together, the blade drops down and forms a liquidtight seal against the bowl. Mix a solution of half water and half baking soda.

Pour the solution into the bowl and soak for 15 minutes to eliminate odors. Rinse the bowl under running warm water and dry thoroughly to prevent bacteria growth or damage. To remove food buildup, unplug the device, remove the blade and discs, remove the bowl and cover from the base, and soak them in warm, soapy water. If the safety mechanism has a lot of buildup, soak the parts in a solution of half water and half vinegar. After 30 minutes, remove the bowl and cover from the soaking solution and rinse them under running warm water. Use a small brush, pipe cleaner, or clothcovered chopstick to dislodge food particles. Dry the bowl and cover thoroughly to prevent bacteria growth or damage. Can I get a replacement. Tried everything can think of and on the site. The cause seems to be that the aluminum rod on the pusher assembly no longer pushes out the stainless safety pin on the bottom of the work bowl lid a sufficient distance to start the processor. The maximum the pin will extend when pushed out using the pusher assembly is 7mm, but when I press against the wheel inside the top of the work bowl cover with a small screwdriver, I can easily extend the pin to 9mm. This 2mm difference prevents the cusinart from turning on when fully assembled. Not sure if the little plastic wheel wore down, or something got bent inside the mechanism that pushes the pin out, but this is the problem the safety pin isn't extending sufficiently to allow the cuisinart to run. Not sure what cuisinart will be willing to do except sell me a new work bowl lid and pusher assembly because the unit is out of warranty. Thanks for the great explanation dlowryjr. This is exactly what my problem is too. Something went wrong. View cart for details. All Rights Reserved.
